SENATOR McLEAN OF CONNECTICUT TAKES DEMOCRATIC LEADERS TO TASK.

SCORES PROPOSED LAW

Claims That Pledges Made to His Constituents Have Been Violated by Underwood-Simmons Bill.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, July 30.—Charging that democratic leaders have broken their tariff promises made to the working people of New England before the last national election, Senator George P. McLean of Connecticut assailed the Underwood-Simmons bill in the senate today.

ATTEMPT AT COMPROMISE

“The protective democrats have tried to compromise with the ‘free trade’ democrats and this of course is impossible,” Senator McLean continued. “You cannot compromise with arithmetic or with common sense. If either here or you are not here, if twenty per cent does not protect, ten per cent will not protect. My complaint is that the democratic party have broken its sacred promise to the people of Connecticut. This I have shown from the words of those democrats who have alone done the promising. This protection is not in any way confined by this bill. It is there by accident only.”

“This bill has been scored as a glaring example of invisible and inaudible government. It is this that the people of Connecticut are afraid of.”

Probably the most beautiful and elaborate feature of the decorative scheme will be the Court of Honor, extending four blocks in the downtown district. The court will be surrounded by forty-eight immense electric pylons, each having a different colored light. The leading business streets will be lined with light poles, each bearing the national colors, represented in two flags. Between these will be the national flag, a flag of cross and crown, and a Maltese cross flag, besides which there will be festoons of colored lights.

CHAUTAUQUA TENTS IN PLACE THURSDAY READY FOR OPENING

Janesville's Summer Entertainment Promises to be an Unusually Excellent One.

Managers of the National Lincoln Chautauqua System with a corps of workmen will arrive in Janesville tomorrow morning for the purpose of erecting the large assembly tent and preparing the grounds for the chautauqua which will open on Friday afternoon, and continue through August 6.

The local committee which has assumed the responsibility for the entertainment are pleased with the prospect for a very fine program of talent which will appear has a wide reputation throughout the country.

The campaign for the ticket sale has been in progress for several weeks with good success. The committee wishes to call attention to the fact, however, that it will be to the advantage of the local management if season tickets are purchased before the opening day. Seats will be bought after tomorrow will be credited to the chautauqua management. Consequently any persons who have not secured their season tickets are urged to buy them tomorrow in order that they may be credited to the local committee which has worked faithfully to insure the success of the project.

In addition to the large assembly tent and the various private tents which will be erected by the chautauqua company, the Rock county woman's suffrage association will have a ladies' rest tent on the grounds for the accommodation of visitors. Here will also be the headquarters of the suffrage association and all members of the society in the county are especially urged to call at this tent if they attend any of the sessions. The committee which has charge of the furnishing of the tent and the securing of women to be in charge throughout the afternoons and evenings is composed of Mrs. Stanley Smith, Mrs. Sanford Soverhill and Miss Caroline Zeininger.

The suffrage association with the consent and co-operation of the chautauqua management, has extended an invitation to Miss Mary McEnerney of Chicago, a prominent Illinois suffragist who has done much good work in the interests of laboring men and women, to give the address on the evening of the last day, Wednesday, August 6. Miss McEnerney has accepted the invitation and her address is looked forward to as one of the treats of the week.

Miss McEnerney is secretary-treasurer of the Binder Women's union, a member of the executive board of the women's trade union league and a member of the legislative committee of the league. She has been instrumental in securing reforms in factory conditions in her state and is known in Chicago as a friend of the laboring people. The working men and women of Janesville are especially urged to hear Miss McEnerney.

In the afternoon of the last day Mrs. Nannie W. Curtis, militant temperance leader of the Texas temperance forces, will give the address on "Our Country's Greatest Need." Mrs. Curtis is a native of Wisconsin and is known in Chicago as a friend of the laboring people. The working men and women of Janesville are especially urged to hear Mrs. Curtis.

Chautauqua audiences enjoy her wit and humor and are thrilled and moved by her wonderful lectures.

UNCLE WALT The Poet Philosopher

Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams
BY WALT MASON

Had Father Noah been quite wise he would have killed the pair of flies that roosted in the ark; he let that pregnant lady slide while he and Shem and Japhet tried to navigate their bark. Two flies were all there were, all told! And Noah might have knocked them cold with one good husky swat; he had the chance—he let it slip while he went mooning round his ship—the knowledge makes me hot! And ever since the sons of men have toiled and thought and toiled again, to kill the measly flies the more we kill the more we find, the more we knock the blamed things blind, the more their legions rise. We're all like Noah, more or less responsible for the distress that makes all hope seem vague; we see some icky thing and let them live and grow and thrive until they are a plague. We calmly view the noxious weeds, and habits bad, and evil deeds, which breed so beastly fast! We let them grow and multiply as Father Noah did the flies, and let ourselves at last, "A stitch in time," the poet said (he had a long and shapely head) "will save you nine, by gum." And nothing truer will you find in all the years that lie behind, or all the years to come.

EXPECT EXCELLENT FAIR AT MILWAUKEE

This Year's State Fair Aids To Surpass All Others—Are Preparing Prize Program For Agriculture Exhibits.

If liberal and judicious expenditure of funds available has the expected effect, officials and members of the Wisconsin state board of agriculture will give the Badger state fair at Milwaukee, September 8-12, that will excel all its predecessors in magnitude and standard of exhibition. This year more than $75,000 is offered in premiums and purses alone, and about $20,000 will be offered for special attractions.

Preparing the premium list for this year, the board and the special committees examined every classification carefully, with the object of placing rewards strictly according to merit and encouraging those pursuits in Wisconsin which are of the greatest value to the state and its people. In nearly every instance the amount of money appropriated for a standard, tried and approved classification in live stock, agriculture, manufactures, the arts and crafts was materially increased. Also several new classifications of acknowledge merit were provided with liberal appropriation. Notable is the separate classification for Belgian draft horses, heretofore classed with the Shires, with an appropriation of $500 for premiums.

The amount of money appropriated for speed events this year is $24,000. The effect of this liberality has already been attested, as about 140 horses were listed in the early closing entries, June 13th. It is notable also that the increase in stakes attracted larger fields from the best horses that are following the big circuits. The faster classes were the best filled. Twenty-four good horses, including many well known money winners, are recorded in the 2:06 pace. In the 2:13 pace, 29 are listed, and in the 2:16 trot 25 have registered. The speed committee also has responded to a popular demand and provided for running races with an appropriation of $1,000.

The record breaking number of entries in all departments at this year's fair give proof that the policy of the board has awakened the interest in this state and all parts of the country. The space in the machinery and dairy buildings already is practically all taken.

While the primary object of the state fair is education for the people of Wisconsin, the board recognizes that a certain amount of high class entertainment on the grounds is essential and this year is putting forth much special effort. Irwin Bros. Real Chayenne Wild West show has been secured to give programs every afternoon and evening every day of the fair at a cost of $15,000. This organization is the same round up that entertained former President Roosevelt at Cheyenne, Wyo., 1904 and 1910, and former President Taft in the same city in 1911. It comprises 350 cowboys, cowgirls, Sioux Indians, also about 75 famous outlawed bronchos and the same number of ranch deer and buffalos.

This organization, which Roosevelt said was the best of its kind he had ever seen, will bring the sensational character of western life right to the home of Wisconsin people. This attraction will be absolutely free to all patrons of the state fair, as all entertainment will take place in an open on the fair grounds. Thus the patrons of the fair will be getting both the best wild west show in the country and the best fair in the middle west for the one price, 50 cents the ordinary charge for a circus. The board has taken even another liberal step and reduced the night admission to 25 cents when all departments and attractions, including the Cheyenne show, will be afforded the same as during the day.

Boonmy accompanies this liberality of the board. Useless expense is being avoided. The board is determined to get a dollar's worth for every dollar expended. The idea is to make the fair most Wisconsin. "Badger's Biggest Boonmy" is the slogan that has been adopted and the sentiment is permeating every activity in connection with the state fair.

DOG HAS COSTLY GOLD TEETH

Little "Mexy" Had Bad Toothache and His Owner Gave Him Brand New Set of Incisors.

Chicago.—In the future, when Mexy's playmates laugh at him for having no hair, he will open his mouth in a yawn, carefully displaying a mouth full of gold teeth that would fill the soul of some people with envy. The set of bridgework cost $112.

At least, those were Mexy's plans when he was interviewed. Not that he was so ill-bred as to say anything about his teeth. In fact, he said nothing intelligible to the average man, for he is a Mexican dog.

He belongs to Dr. Henri Grosser, a student at the Western Dental college, and lives with Grosser and his wife at 934 La Salle avenue.

Dr. Grosser took Mexy from the refuge of the Anti-Cruelty society several weeks ago and soon afterward discovered that the dog was suffering from toothache.

An examination disclosed the presence of two abscessed incisors and several other teeth that needed attention. The basement of the Grosser home was turned into an operating room, with Mexy as the patient and Dr. Grosser the dentist.

"Mexy seemed to know that I was doing what was best for him," Dr. Grosser said, "and, although he objected a good deal at first, he gave me no trouble after the teeth were out. It was a great relief to him, you see, for as soon as I had removed the teeth the pain stopped."

"He used to lie perfectly still when I was taking the impressions and made no trouble, even when I was fitting the new teeth in place. They are good and sound, too, and not a dog in Chicago is better able to chew bones and meat than he."

By reason of his teeth, Mexy has become one of the celebrities of the neighborhood.

Important, Though Unnoticed.

We are apt to underestimate the force of unorganized conviction in politics and religion. Milk costs a city as much as water, for all that its supply is unfocused, so little impressive in any way. The milk has nothing monumental about it, but the lofty aqueduct is not of more account.

London's Smoke Nuisance.

Half of London's smoke nuisance is caused by the coal fires in private dwellings, the owners of which are not liable for prosecution. It is expected that a good deal of missionary work will have to be done among householders before the smoke evil can be lessened appreciably.

"If it would only wash the dishes"

A lady called yesterday to buy one of those $12.00 ranges, which we connect free of charge, and she said: "You have told so many wonderful things that this gas range will do, that I couldn't resist the temptation to have one. If it would only wash the dishes automatically, life would be one pleasant dream."

We admit that there are limitations to the work that the gas range will perform, but while it will not wash the dishes, it will give plenty of hot water quickly, and hot water and plenty of it will remove most of the distastefulness of dish-washing. Also, you do not have to keep the "stove going" while the meal is being served to keep the water boiling, because a gas stove is easily lighted and heats quickly, and the expense of fuel is stopped while the meal is being served.

We stand back of the assertion that a gas range on any $14.50 is the biggest range bargain in the United States.

Young man, go south! Go south, at about the age of three, and grow up there. And then when you reach man's estate and want a chance in the big leagues you will say to the manager: "Sir, I was raised under the Dixie sun, I'm a natural-born hitter and when the weather's hot I can lam the pill to a fare-you-well! And the chances are you'd get a job. The southern sun makes great ball players. It turns out the kind that don't wilt in the torrid seasons and who can field the ball in the sun with the greatest of ease. If you don't believe it, consider Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker and Joe Jackson. All southern boys. Jackson comes from Greenville, Carolina; Cobb from Royston, Ga., and Speaker hails from Hubbard City, Texas. And the dope seems to show that the hot sun and the "high" sky of the south are great training for ball players, who when they come north to play are able to stand the heat in the very hottest months and can judge a ball to perfection. If you would make a killing in the big show, go south, young man, go south.

Sam Langford, always on the outlook for a chance to cop the change, has signed up with Joe Jeannette for twenty rounds in Los Angeles. The mill will probably take place Sept. 29. Before starting in to train, however, Joe with his wife and baby, his manager, sparring partners and the rest of his retinue, has started east on a little pleasure trip to visit relatives. Joe likes to enjoy himself almost as much as he likes to fight. The bout with Jeannette should attract quite a bit of money.

The Cleveland Naps have signed up a recruit twirler named Joy, who had planned upon reaching man's estate to be a priest, but turned out to be a ball player. At that it does seem as though he made a wise move, even though his folks seemed highly displeased. The name Joy would sound a whole lot better on the score card than on a church announcement.

JUNEAU SEARCHING FOR FOOTBALL MEN

Coach Juneau Due to Arrive at Madison Last of Week to Look Over Football Prospects.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., July 30.—Coach Juneau will arrive here from Milwaukee later in the week to look over Badger football prospects for 1913. Juneau is facing the probability of losing two promising back field men, Berger and Belows. The former is touring Europe and may not be home in time for athletics this fall. Belows may be missing on account of business affairs in his family. Considering that these two men are players with a complete knowledge of the game and men with much experience.

The contest next Tuesday afternoon between Schaller and Baker will be a very interesting match, considering that these two men are players with a complete knowledge of the game and men with much experience.

High class pitching and a bunch of heavy sluggers is the Giants' recipe for manufacturing a National league pennant.

Davy Jones, the old Detroit outfielder who is now with Toledo, is hitting well over the 300 mark in the American association.

First Baseman Jake Daubert, of Brooklyn, is the first player in the National league to make one hundred hits this season.

Pinup, of the Sherman team, leads the Texas-Oklahoma league in batting. What's in a name so long as you carry the wallop.

Jimmy Sheppard is doing nice work for the Cincinnati outfield in place of Marsans, who is on the sick list. The Athletics have shipped Dave Morey, the Dartmouth pitcher, to the Frederick club, of the New Brunswick-Maine league.

Joe Wood, the star finger of the Boston Red Sox, will be out of the game for at least three weeks on account of a busted thumb.

LAME DEFENSE.

This discussion which has swept through the press of the country relative to Secretary Bryan's statement that he must deliver lectures during his vacation periods to make both ends meet, is becoming tiresome. The Milwaukee Sentinel handles one thought of the whole situation as follows:

"Editor La Follette's defense of Secretary Bryan's absence from a distinct crisis in our foreign relations obviously (and, one suspects, consciously and sophistically) misses the real point in the controversy.

"Substantially, Mr. La Follette argues that the secretary is taking a vacation and has a right to spend it as he pleases.

"Nobody contends that Mr. Bryan has no right to take a vacation. But Mr. Bryan, by his own statement, is not taking a vacation.

"He is out on the road playing his calling as a lecturer because, as he frankly says, he needs the money. A man who is out earning money and filling contracts is not on a vacation, in any recognized or proper sense of that term.

"It is a childish abuse of language (for a futile dig at Mr. Bryan) for Mr. La Follette to describe filling $12,000 worth of lecture contracts as 'recreation.' If it is 'recreation' for him, Mr. Bryan is certainly charging the common people a pretty figure for letting him enjoy himself.

"And even if Mr. Bryan were taking a vacation, he certainly would be choosing a very inopportune time for it, with this dangerous Mexican question pressing for the attention of the state department.

"When Mr. La Follette intimates that Mr. Bryan's absence at such a juncture really doesn't matter much, he is paying a very poor compliment to Mr. Bryan. Most of us think highly enough of Mr. Bryan's abilities and powers of persuasion to think that it matters a good deal. If Mr. La Follette were given to sardonic humor, one might think he wrote that defense of Mr. Bryan with his tongue in his cheek."

THE PRICE PAID.

"It does not follow from the withdrawal by the eastern railroads of their demand for the inclusion of their 'eight questions of inequity and excessive wages' in the impending arbitration with the conductors and trainmen that they were wrong in presenting these questions." Says the Wall Street Journal. "The conference committee of managers says: 'It is evident that the conductors' and trainmen's organizations would go to the full extent of subjecting the country to the calamity that a strike on the eastern railroads would cause, rather than have all matters pertaining to the questions at issue submitted to fair and comprehensive arbitration.' At first glance this reads like a harsh statement of the union attitude, but it amounts only to saying that the brotherhoods, after having obtained a practical monopoly of the class of labor involved, refuse to assume any of the responsibility for keeping railroad service going, and that in consequence this responsibility falls entirely upon the companies.

"Seth Low, who is president of the National Civic Federation, commenting upon the action of the railroads which makes arbitration in this case possible, says: 'All arbitration to be effective must be voluntary. Compulsory arbitration is out of the question; for men cannot be compelled to work unless they are willing to work. Under these circumstances every question to be submitted to arbitration must be admitted by the consent of both sides.' This is true enough, but it ignores a certain degree of compulsion to which the companies have had to submit. Simply because they cannot cease to run trains they have been compelled to accept the limitation of arbitrable issues dictated by the brotherhoods.

"Of course no such concession by itself is ever fatal to the companies, a fact of which the unions have always been quick to take advantage. The question is how long they can accept arbitration after arbitration arranged in advance to suit the man. A process of settlement in which one side insists that it shall have nothing to lose and everything to gain can hardly be called voluntary arbitration. The conference committee of managers, in its latest communication to the United States Board of Mediation and Conciliation, has served due notice that the railroads cannot be expected to consent to such a one-sided arrangement in the future."

NOTHING TO COMPROMISE.
It has been suggested that now that the recent recall election is all past, it is time to affect a compromise in the interests of peace and harmony. Really there is nothing to compromise. While the majority was small the voters of Janesville decided what kind of a city they wanted and they are going to have it. The men who were responsible for the recent warfare are not in any position to offer terms and threats of attempting the recall of a second city official is mere empty talk that does not frighten anyone. The men who were in honest in the last election on the recall side express themselves freely as opposed to such a move so that it reverts back to mere talk.

THE CHAUTAUQUA.
On Friday of this week residents of Janesville and the immediate vicinity have the opportunity of attending the first session of the chautauqua which will be held on the grounds on Washington street, easily reached from all parts of the city. The chautauqua idea is not a new one but the placing of these entertainments within the reach of the masses of all is. The program for the coming six days is well worth careful consideration and will be enjoyed by all. It is varied enough to give good entertainment to satisfy everyone. It is up to the citizens to support this undertaking and purchase season tickets so that it may be made an annual feature.

THE ALLEYS.
It would look as though our genial street commissioner was sadly lacking in the appreciation of the beautiful but unsightly condition of the alleys about the city. If any place in the city should be kept clean and neat it should be the public buildings, but strangers arriving in the city receive a wrong impression after viewing the before mentioned alleys. It is time to clean up, gentlemen.

One hastily assumes that, in the opinion of Senator La Follette, the railroad merger system is nearly as rotten as the presidential nomination system.

SPURE MOMENT

A Hot Weather Idyl.
I love to lie beneath the trees beside the babbling brook,
And bury myself all day in a Robert Chambers book;
I love to seek a quiet spot where there is naught but shade,
And have a fried chicken for my lunch with ice-cold lemonade.
It is my joy and dream of bliss to live among the trees,
Far from the city's grimy street and catch the vagrant breeze.
'Tis glorious and that's a fact, at least that's what they say,
I love to do that sort of thing, but I can't get away.

I love to ride upon a yacht and sail the cooling sea;
A good fast automobile also makes a hit with me.
I love to spend the summer up among the mountain tops,
Far from the burning asphalt pavement and offices and shops.
There's some class to a cottage down upon the sandy shore,
Where auto horns don't rend the air and street cars do not roar.
I love all of these summer things; they say they're very nice.
The only thing a feller needs to have is just the price.

Heart to Heart Talks

By JAMES A. EDGERTON

THE GOOD OLD SUMMER TIME.

When the green gits back on the trees and bees
Is humming 'round 'ag'in
In that sort of an easy, go as you please,
Or way they hum round in,
When you get to work an' you want to not
An' you an' your wife agrees
It's time to spade up the garden lot,
Why, I like, as I say, sick thus as these
When the green, you know, gits back on the trees.
—James Whitcomb Riley.

I quote from memory, not having seen the poem in fifteen years, so do not mind if there should happen to be a comma misplaced. But, at any rate, the sentiment is there.

Well, it is coming again, the "good old summer time." You can feel it in the air right now.

And I like it—don't you? Every season is good, but summer—well, summer is the wine of the year.

The bees like summer, and the bees have more sense than some people. The birds like summer. So do the flowers. So does the small boy.

Some people picture heaven as a place where summer never ends. Well, they do not have to go to heaven to find that condition. They can get it in southern California or down around the equator.

But there can be too much of even as good a thing as summer.

These little winter absences heighten our enjoyment of it, just as we appreciate home the more when we have been away.

Winter is a good thing because it whets the appetite for summer. The sun is a magician who by merely looking upon the fields and trees covers them with verdure and blossoms.

He is an artist who uses the earth as a canvas and places thereon colors compared to which man's best creations are but weak imitations and dabbles.

He marches northward, and a belt of green advances before him announcing his coming.

When he has reached his farthest north our bleak climate has the miracle of June.

No wonder the ancients fell on their faces before the rising sun.

When summer comes man would cease work, so enraptured is he with the mere luxury of living.

The sun looks upon the wheat fields and they grow golden into harvest, upon the flowers and they turn their faces toward him with pleasure, upon the fruits and they blush red in ripening.

The sun is king and summer is his queen. To this royal pair man ever is a loyal subject.

FIVE-CENT TIP IS SPURNED

Disappointed Taxicab Pilot Astonishes European "Fare" by Strange Disposition of Largesse.

New York.—Women were discarding their wraps in the lobby of the St. Regis at the dinner hour when a tall man from Europe entered the hotel through the huge revolving doors. There was a loud rattle-rattle-rattle on the glass. The man from Europe turned hastily and looking about asked the guard in gold braid:

"What was that?"
"I don't know, sir. I saw nothing, sir," the braided one replied.

"Very strange," said a man in the lobby, stepping up. "Quite a loud report. Must have come from the outside."

"Ah, there, guard! Step out and see!" thundered the assistant manager. The man went out trembling.

The result of his inquiry was astonishing to the man from Europe. He had returned to the St. Regis in a "tramp" taxicab, and after paying his fare gave the chauffeur a nickel for himself. The latter threw it with all his force at the glass door.

"I was thoughtful," murmured the man from Europe. "Undoubtedly he is a gentleman chauffeur and too proud to take a tip."

Recently Shields, suffered a sudden attack of total blindness from the strain imposed on the good eye by the blind. He was removed to a Philadelphia hospital, and there the physicians determined that his good eye, which had been affected, would have to be done away with. They discovered, however, that the blind eye was made so by a cataract. That removed the blind eye regained its sight.

Carrying by more than twice as much stock as any store hereabouts. The Big Store deserves the name; but not so much for that alone as for the service we render the buying public. Far and wide our service is remarked upon. It is not an occasional thing, to receive orders from people who have lived here and moved away or from people who have visited in Janesville and now live several hundreds of miles away, but who took with them some of our store spirit. And our prices are another factor. People tell us daily that our prices are lower for the same quality goods than elsewhere.

MRS. M. HOLDREDGE

BELIEVES LEE MIGHT

BE MISSING BROTHER

Writes Administrator of Estate of Deceased Chicago Publisher to Learn Facts.

It is possible that in Mrs. Mary Holdredge, before coming to Janesville, this city, one of the heirs of the late William Henry Lee, the Chicago publisher who left considerable estate but no known heirs, may have been discovered.

James F. Fisher, administrator of the Lee estate, to learn what she can of the life of the man she believes was her older brother, and if it corresponds with the facts of his life, she will be able to establish his claim to the estate.

William Henry Lee, formerly of the publishing firm of Laird and Lee, died recently, leaving no known heirs. There has been much conjecture about his life before he established himself in Chicago in the publishing business and beyond the fact he is supposed to have been a southerner, in truth connected with the Lee family of Virginia, and to have lived in St. Louis before coming to Chicago, nothing is known. Mr. Lee never told even his partner of his former life, was not married and left no papers by which any heirs could be traced.

He left considerable estate, which if not claimed by heirs will revert to the state of Illinois.

Mrs. Holdredge, whose maiden name was Lee, believes that Mr. Lee was her older brother. Her father was Stephen Lee, born in 1806 and died in 1869. He was married to Mrs. Elizabeth Lee, formerly of the publishing firm of Laird and Lee, died recently, leaving no known heirs.

Mrs. Holdredge, whose maiden name was Lee, believes that Mr. Lee was her older brother. Her father was Stephen Lee, born in 1806 and died in 1869. He was married to Mrs. Elizabeth Lee, formerly of the publishing firm of Laird and Lee, died recently, leaving no known heirs.

There has been much conjecture about his life before he established himself in Chicago in the publishing business and beyond the fact he is supposed to have been a southerner, in truth connected with the Lee family of Virginia, and to have lived in St. Louis before coming to Chicago, nothing is known. Mr. Lee never told even his partner of his former life, was not married and left no papers by which any heirs could be traced.

Character Revealed by Eye.

Gray eyes denote creative temperament, but not always honesty. What the novelists and poets term the cold, gray eye is considered to be a sign of selfishness and cruelty, though it often denotes shrewdness and talent. Very clever people whose eyes are gray generally have small spots of orange in the iris round the pupil.

YOUNG GIRL TAKES

VALUABLE DIAMOND

JUST FOR A NIGHT

Edith Landers, Aged 17, Couldn't Resist Temptation to Wear Employer's Ring, And Goes To Jail.

Suffering from illness, weary with fatigue, the result of years of farm drudgery from which she sought to escape by running away to Edgerton two weeks ago, seventeen year old Edith Landers is today occupying the woman's cell at the county jail where she was brought on Tuesday night after the theft of a diamond ring valued at $200, from Mrs. B. L. Cleary of Edgerton.

Too tired and sick to care much what happened and far beyond the stage of giving vent to her feelings by weeping, the girl told her story to Sheriff Whipple today. "I didn't mean to keep the ring," she said. "I was going to return it the next day. It was very pretty and I thought of one of my grandfathers gave me but which I lost."

After taking the ring the girl gave it to a young man with whom she spent the evening. He promised to return it the next day and she eventually thought nothing about the matter in her innocent inexperience with the ways of society and the world in general.

Cleary, in whose employ the girl had been as a domestic for two weeks, missed her ring yesterday and when she spoke to the girl she at first denied her guilt but later broke down and confessed to the theft. The authorities were notified and Edith was brought to Janesville last night and placed in Sheriff Whipple's charge to await a decision as to what action should be taken.

The ring has been returned to its owner. The young man with whom she spent the evening, who was arrested last night by Justice Fred Jensen, readily gave it over, saying that he had done so long ago.

Edith's story as told to Sheriff Whipple, amounts in patches. Her father lives on Whitewater near Port Atkinson. Her mother is now dead. She can remember she had worked on the farm. She had shocked grain under the burning July sun and at night she had helped with the milking. Her hands and arms were burned brown from the exposure.

She had been forced to leave school when fifteen years old, although she had not gone farther than sixth grade. Her parents insisted that she must go to work, she said, although she herself had wanted to go to high school.

Tired of her life of drudgery Edith determined to run away and seek employment in town, where she could "earn her own living." She found work in the Cleary household at Edgerton and said she liked it there but was homesome because she didn't like the work.

Edith's father who came to Janesville today to look into his daughter's case told Sheriff Whipple that he thought that the best thing that could be done for the girl was to have her somewhere. He said she was stubborn and that they had been unable "to do much with her lately." She is one of a family of eight children.

There is no particular reason why the girl should be held in the jail as it is not probable that there will be a prosecution. Her case will be looked after by the authorities.

Justice Jensen stated this afternoon that steps might be taken to have the girl sent to the industrial school at Milwaukee. Jensen declared the girl had at first absconded with the ring, and that she was given to deception.

Worry May Cause Death.
Medical science has recently explained how worry commits its murders. It has reached the conclusion that in many instances of what have been regarded as lunacy, and from which the victim finally dies, the cause has simply been one of acute worry. Instead of the person dying of mental breakdown, he has worried himself to death.

Rid Your Children of Worms
You can change fretful, ill-tempered children into healthy, happy youngsters by ridding them of worms. Tossing, rolling, grinding of teeth, crying out while asleep, accompanied with intense thirst, pains in the stomach and bowels, feverishness and bad breath, are symptoms that indicate worms. Kickapoo Worm Killer, a pleasant candy lozenge, expels the worms, regulates the bowels, restores your children to health and happiness. Mrs. J. A. Brislin, of Elgin, Ill., says: "I have used Kickapoo Worm Killer for years, and entirely rid my children of worms. I would not be without it." Medicine Co., Philadelphia and St.

CHAUTAUQUA BIG MACHINE

System and Exactness Keys to Great Success.

LIKE AND UNLIKE CIRCUS

Crews That Handle Assembly Tents are College Men—Clean and Gentlemenly—Are Skilled and Trained Managers.

When one sees the greatness of a single Chautauqua assembly with its thousands of patrons and visitors, and is told that a hundred and fifty other assemblies just like this are being held this summer, the talent and arrangements all being directed from one central office, it seems hard to believe. Nevertheless that is the fact. Most people have sometimes watched a circus come to town. They have seen under the hands of trained men, a tented city rise from the ground as if by magic, in almost less time than it takes to tell it. The morning after the tents had vanished and nothing was left but memories of yesterday.

The modern Circuit Chautauqua is conducted with all the precision and system of the largest circus or railroad. Every large tent is scheduled to arrive in town at a certain time and to leave town on scheduled time for another town when the local Chautauqua is over. Each tent and group of talent has its number and place on the time-table like a train.

Circus tents are handled the same way, only they generally make a "one day stand" while the Chautauqua lasts a week, growing better and drawing larger crowds each day. While Chautauqua tents and circus tents are moved from town to town and erected and "wrecked" in the same way, the similarity ends there. The purpose of the two institutions are as different as night and day. The character of the men composing the crews who handle the tents also differ widely. On the one hand, there is the circus crew—roustabouts, picked up by the management from various towns through which the circus passes. On the other hand the average Chautauqua crew—young college men of clean features and athletic build—successful doctors, lawyers, ministers and merchants of the next generation—ambitious young men with visions, who seek the best that life offers.

The eastern circuit of the National Lincoln Chautauqua System, covering Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Maryland, has seven mammoth tents of uniform size, with a crew of helpers for each tent. One Chautauqua is closing each day, a new one opening each day and at least one of the seven tents is "on the move" each day, leaving the town where the Chautauqua has just closed, for the town where another is just about to open.

Each group of talent moves forward day by day in "Indian trail" fashion, making every town on the circuit. As the towns are close together, it is almost impossible for them to miss a date. The tent and crew remain in a town six days, from the opening until the close of the local assembly, and then jump past the next six towns where the other tents and crews have opened one each day since this tent's last opening and locate in the seventh town, thus having a day to pitch the tent and make all the necessary arrangements for their opening.

There are two different kinds of Chautauques—the "circuit" and the "independent." In the "circuit" Chautauqua, the talent, superintendent, tent and crew are all furnished by the local Chautauqua association by the central management, the same talent appearing at all the towns long the circuit. It really amounts to a co-operative plan by which a hundred or more local Chautauqua organizations club together, selecting a central office and management, for the purpose of securing the best talent at a fraction of what it would cost if engaged singly or separately. Thus the local Chautauqua association really manages the local Chautauqua, has charge of the sale of tickets and disposition of the proceeds, but at the same time does not have to go to the expense and trouble of renting a big tent and making forty or fifty individual contracts with the talent. All this is done for the towns through the central office.

The "independent" Chautauques are those which choose to take on their own shoulders the many risks connected with the holding of an assembly. They rent the tent, paying several times what is costs on the circuit plan, and if the tent is damaged by storm or as a result of being handled by inexperienced hands, they have to make good the damage. The talent is all contracted for individually which necessitates the payment of the regular lyceum rate for a single appearance. In one case an independent Chautauqua paid $110 for one concert by a certain company, while the very same company when secured under the circuit plan, cost only $125 for an entire week (seven towns) or only eighteen dollars per town instead of $110. That is one reason for the phenomenal growth of the Circuit Chautauques.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

NIAGARA FALLS.
(by HOWARD L. RANN)

Niagara Falls is a huge volume of noise entirely surrounded by bridges and groves. It is also surrounded by a bustling crowd of hotels which subsist on honeymoon expenses and never close their doors so long as there is a newly wedded couple in sight.

Niagara Falls consists of a wide river in a break in the rock like a spit ball or a "T-joint." This break is so high that people who have tried to slide down it with the intention of later going on the vaudeville stage have not only suffered disappointment but numerous compound fractures. Hundreds of daring persons have leaped themselves into the pungent interior of the falls head first, under a contract to show in Buffalo the following evening, only to be caved in on all four sides and hauled into a rowboat with home blasted and ribs bent. One of the most popular methods of committing suicide is to try to swim across the river above the falls. Four times out of five this is an unequalled success, and the fifth time there is nothing left but a shredded bathing suit and an interrogation point.

There is so much noise around and adjacent to Niagara Falls that engaged people have to make love on their fingers. Nature has hollowed out the back of the falls so that tourists can be let down the back way in rubber coats and ear trumpets and catch the Canadian pneumonia. Every year thousands of pairs of new, practically unused wedding shoes are ruined for time and eternity in this manner.

There is a steamboat at Niagara Falls called "The Maid of the Mist" which will run its nose into the falls at a low price of admission. It is a memorable experience to stand on the deck of this boat and figure out how long the testator would last if the falls should run into something and leave the main line.

Niagara has the Canadian government on one side and the Payne-Aldrich tariff on the other, which is a very convenient arrangement, as the American tourist who wants to reduce the high cost of living can drop over on the Canadian side and secure two soft-boiled eggs for the price of one.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS DID FATHER HAVE TO COME TO THE COUNTRY FOR THIS?

By F. Leipsiger

The WOMAN

A Novel by Albert Payson Terhune

Founded on William C. de Mille's Play of the same name

Copyright 1912, The Bobbs-Merrill Co., by special arrangement with the DeMille Publishing Co.

"You're quite wrong," said Standish, with a certain irritating patience, "I haven't any pose. If I had I should not bother to display it for your benefit. I am not hypocrite enough to say I don't want every legitimate political reward I can earn. Who doesn't? But that's not why I'm fighting this Mullins bill of yours. And at heart you know it isn't. I'm trying to kill this bill because it is an offense to the country's nostrils. The bill is innocent enough on its face. Van Dyke and the rest saw to that, I suppose. But when I looked at it more closely I saw it was framed to legalize the over-capitalization of every railroad in the United States and to undo what little good a few decent lawmakers have been struggling for years to accomplish."

"Then—"

"You know I'm right. That is the Mullins bill's real object. That is why you people tried to rush it through before we could have a chance to pick it apart and to hunt for the 'nigger in the wood-pile.' Well, I've studied it closely enough to make sure the pile contains very little except niggers. And I've made the public see it, too."

"Never mind bringing in your services to the dear public. You get your pay for that from them, not from me. The point is, you are lining up with our enemies. Standish, I'm not given to threatening; but from now on you're going to have an active life."

"I understand. And I look for nothing else. If the party that elected me is betraying the people, then I must fight that party. And I'm going to. Understand me clearly. I'm going to."

"And the heavy voice heid no note of threat, nor did it show the faintest trace of excitement. To Tom Blake, the conversation's non-combatant, the insurgent's rather, turgid words carried far stronger message for this very absence of emotion. But they served merely to strip from Mark Robertson his last shreds of diplomatic armor.

"You talk like a reform candidate for poundmaster at Pompton, N. J.," he retorted. "I've done nothing every one else isn't doing every day. Nothing that the custom of centuries hasn't legitimated; and nothing, I believe, that you haven't done. You've made the people think you're a little tin god. But you can't make me think it."

"I can't now remember," said Standish wearily, "having tried to do it. Well, you probably know it would be time wasted." snapped Robertson. "There must be something somewhere or other, in your past life, that wouldn't shine out to any advantage in print. I'm going to camp on the trail of your past performances. And when I strike the crooked by-path I'm looking for, I'll—" threats seemed to strike within the insurgent some genuine chord of merit.

"In that case, Governor Robertson," he said pleasantly, "I advise you to waste not one minute of time in setting to work. Because, though I've been able to upset several pet plans of yours during the past six years, you'll find everything I've done to you will be as mere child's play compared to what I'll do as soon as I'm in the speaker's chair."

"The speaker's chair!" roared Mark Standish, caution and even a cool fighting knowledge thrown to the four winds. "The speaker's chair! You'll never sit in it! Never in ten thousand years. Not if I have to—"

"Why, hello, boys!" drawled a voice from the doorway.

A man came leisurely down the stairs and laid one hand on Robertson's arm. Voice and action were calm, even pacific. Yet they slammed shut the New Yorker's floodgates of wrath and left him speechless, nervous, almost apologetic.

A hundred pairs of eyes from all parts of the long corridor turned as by occult attraction and fixed themselves in wide interest upon the newcomer.

CHAPTER V.

Jim Blake.

The man whose advent in the Keswick corridor caused more attention among the loungers than would the arrival of a stage beauty, had at first glance little about him to justify such interest. He was long rather than tall, thin with a wiry compactness, and of a pleasant non-committal face. His eyes might have been fifty. But a closer glance at his half-shut eyes always gave an odd impression that they were fully a thousand years old. Perhaps this was why Jim Blake seldom opened them wide.

"Hello, boys," repeated Jim Blake, glancing genially and inexpressively from one to the other, from beneath his hanging lids. "Seemed to me I smelt something burning. How are you, Standish? What's up, Tom?"

"Why," answered Tom vaguely embarrassed, "nothing very much. Just a little political discussion."

"So I gathered," yawned Blake. "Mark, you seemed to have been supplying the fireworks for it. I don't suppose it occurred to you that the whole surrounding landscape is fairly crawling with reporters? Nice little story for the morning papers, hey? 'High Words Between Speakers Aspirants in Keswick Lobby.' And a half column more of what you both would have said if you'd said what the reporters thought maybe you might have said. Fine business. Especially at this time."

"He called me—" burst forth Mark. "And you showed your hand?"

"Good poker, Mark. But punk politics. Mark, I'm afraid we're keeping Mr. Standish from his dinner."

"Good night," replied Standish, taking the broad hint with no show of feeling.

"Good night—till the house meets at ten o'clock," said Blake. "I suppose you'll lead your gallant insurgent cohorts in person this evening?"

"Yes."

"Don't want to call it off and come into the fold again, I s'pose?" suggested Blake quizzically.

"No, thanks," smiled the insurgent, and passed on toward the dining room.

"Hello, Van Dyke!" called Blake as the lawyer, with Neligan and Gregg in tow, came along the corridor toward them, from the bar. "What brings you to Washington? What's up?"

"That's what I'm trying to find out," answered Van Dyke, shaking hands with Blake and instinctively leading the way to the adjacent amen corner.

"What is up? You're supposed to be managing this fight, Jim. And here we find ourselves in the very worst hole we've been in since ninety-seven. If you and I hadn't fought shoulder to shoulder for years and years, I'd be tempted to say you were lying down."

"The crowd down on Broadway," answered Blake, "have handed us a raw proposition in this Mullins bill. The bill smells so rank that even the dear, dear public have got a whiff of it. And when the public gets its sense of smell into good working order—Oh, what's the use, Van Dyke? You can see what we're up against. You know the temper of the country. We can't even defend that bill of yours. And this is no time to put over such a raw one. It's like—"

"Still," argued Van Dyke, "you said you'd be able to put the deal through. And there's surely enough in it for us all."

"I said I could put it through. And I could—when we started. But Standish wasn't fighting it then. This isn't the Bill versus the People. It's Mat Standish versus the Organization. And Standish has the people—the waked-up people—behind him. He's their idol. He's the parson's pet. They look on him as the Worthy Young Man who couldn't do wrong if he tried and who isn't wicked enough to try. In other words, he's never been found out. There's only two classes of men that I ever met—the sort that have been found out and the sort that haven't. If we can damage Standish in the eyes of the people—if we can make the clergy repudiate him—"

"That's just the point," cried Van Dyke. "Why haven't you been able to do that, instead of sitting peacefully to one side and waiting for him to wreck himself?"

"We've had detectives on him," put in Neligan. "I told you all that, Van Dyke."

"Detectives?" snorted the lawyer. "What good is that? Your detectives will charge you seven dollars a day and expenses—mostly expenses—for giving you a full report of the way Standish spends the day and what he has to eat and the number of cigars he smokes and the addresses of some of the letters he writes. You'll never get Standish that way. If ever he's broken a law—and most men have—"

"Oh, not so many," gently contradicted Blake. "Two fails would be plenty large to hold all the folks who have broken any law. And the two fails could be built real easy—just by running a high wall around the equator. But you're right in one thing, Van Dyke. We'll never get Standish in the way these boys have been going about it. So, it's lucky I happened to put a man of my own on the job."

"Yes. While I've been 'lying down,' as you call it."

"I didn't say you had been—"

"No. But you thought it. Just because I don't run around in circles, barking, and now and then biting a piece out of the ceiling, you folks think I'm doing nothing. And I'll never teach you any better."

"But—"

"Oh, yes. I put a man of my own on to Standish's record. I told him not to bother about anything that had happened during the last three or four years. Your men would be busy on that; and there'd be nothing to find, anyhow. I set my man to scratching up ancient history. I told him to go back and back and back, in Standish's record; and to keep on going back till he found something."

"Well," chorused the others as Blake paused and searched his clothes with maddening slowness for a match.

"Well," drawled Blake, "he's found it."

"No?" chuckled Neligan, wildly elated.

"The story is long," said Blake; "but I can shorten it up considerably for you. Along about five years ago friend Standish fell in love with a girl. Right sort of a girl, you know. Good family. Father rich and all that. Standish wasn't very well off—he was always

Consumption

Anyone interested in the treatment of Consumption should get one of the booklets telling of recoveries by the use of Eckman's Alternative. Coughs, Croup, Colic and Pneumonia may be the beginning of serious troubles—Eckman's Alternative is the effective remedy. Read Mr. Kuntz's statement—

"Gentlemen: For five or six years I was troubled with cough and expectoration. I also had a high fever. My case was declared Consumption by my physician. I was given Cod Liver Oil, Croscote and other medicines, all without benefit."

"At Christmas time, 1906, I was not expected to live. Calling Dr. H. H. McGowan, he advised the use of Eckman's Alternative, which I took with excellent results, and was cured. I have gained in weight. I go out in all weathers and have had no cough or cold whatever. I give these facts to encourage others to use Eckman's Alternative."

(Signed) ARTHUR JAS. W. KUNTZ, Eckman's Alternative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung troubles, and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain poisons, opiates or habit-forming drugs. Ask for booklet telling of recoveries, and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for more evidence. For sale by all leading druggists and Smith Drug Co., McKees & Buss, Peoria, Ill., in Janesville.

"No!"

"Yes. And, as an afterthought, yes, again. I can show you the hotel register with—"

"The fool didn't register under his own name, did he?" demanded Gregg.

"No," said Blake. "Registered under the name of Fowler. But any handwriting expert can prove he wrote it, and the hotel manager can swear Standish was the man. The manager is ready to swear Standish called the woman his wife, too."

"Oh, the joy!" grinned Gregg, the worldling.

"You see," went on Blake, "he really expected to marry her. They were just taking time by the forelock. And then—here's the queerest tangle of all—after that week there, it seems she backed out and wouldn't marry him at all. No, Gregg, it wasn't he that threw her over. This was the other way around. The woman flitted him and went back to her family. One week of Standish was about all she was up to. And she balked at making a life job of it. I don't wonder."

"But didn't her family find out?"

"It seems not. They thought she had been away visiting a girl friend in the country. She got home safe, and everything looked proper as a rainy Sunday in a graveyard. Some women sure have luck."

"Go on," urged Van Dyke.

"That's about all," finished Blake. "She woke up, as I told you, to find it was all a mistake and no harm done—thank heaven. And as far as I can make out, they haven't seen each other since. I won't swear to that part of it. But if they have, his secretary doesn't know it. No—"

"Who was the woman?" queried Robertson.

"That," answered Blake reluctantly, "is the one thing left to find out."

Van Dyke fairly groaned.

"Then," he demanded, "how is this miserable story going to help us?"

"Oh," replied Blake, "the net's closing around her. I hope to have her name tonight."

"Tonight! We've got to have it tonight. Before the Mullins bill comes up. The name's no use to us after that."

Dinner Stories

For a long time the pale-faced man regarded the sandwich on the counter before him suspiciously. At length he carefully lifted off the top slice of bread, took out a piece of ham, ate it and replaced as before. In a few seconds he again removed the top

"Excuse me," said the inquisitive one, "but why don't you eat up your sandwich instead of picking at it in that fashion?"

"Well, you see," whispered back the other, glancing around suspiciously, "I cannot very well eat it. It's not my sandwich."

"Percy Parkinson rose and brushed the dust from his knees. Then, drawing himself up to his full height, he gazed resentfully upon the form of Miss Muriel Muggins, who nonchalantly leaned herself against the counter.

"Very well, Miss Muggins," came in bitter tones from Percy. "Oh, very well. You have spurned me, it is true. But, though despair eats my heart, I shall not die! I mean to go into the busy world. I will fight! I will win! My name shall become known and my riches shall become envied."

"Pardon me for interrupting you, Mr. Parkinson," interjected Miss Muggins, "but when you have accomplished all that you may try me again."

What He Would Do.

A young lady visiting her relations on a farm went out in the yard to watch her young cousin play with a chicken. Watching him for some time she asked him: "Willie, if that chicken were to lay an egg what would you do with it?" He looked up surprised, then said: "Oh, I'd sell it to a museum. That chicken's a rooster."

Making His Opportunity.

A New York banker has made it the rule of his life never to swear except when he drops his watch, as he sometimes does absent-mindedly, and breaks it. Under strong provocation he took out his watch and flung it on the marble floor of his office. So, it seems, when you put your mind on it there is a way to solve every problem.

Words of Praise

For Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy.

"How thankful we are to you for getting a hold of your Wonderful Remedy. My wife could not eat and had a short time to live. If she had not taken your wonderful Remedy when she did, one of those pains, which she was having would have killed her."

without a doubt. Now she is free from all pain, free from heart trouble and free from that distressing Neuralgia—all the results of five treatments—and the expulsion of five or six hundred Gall Stones. Now she is able to eat anything she wants and her appetite is good and before taking your medicine she had no appetite and when she ate anything she would suffer death for so doing and could not sleep at night; since taking your treatment she sleeps well all night long. T. A. Nott, Danville, Va."

The above letter should convince you more than anything we could say in behalf of Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy. Sufferers should try one dose of this Remedy—one dose should convince them that they can be restored to health. Nearly all Stomach Ailments are caused by the clogging of the intestinal tract with mucus and catarrhal secretions, allowing poisons to find their way into the stomach and otherwise deranging the digestive system. Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy positively removes these secretions without surgical operation and puts an end to Colic Attacks, Gases in the Stomach and Intestines and all of the usual symptoms of Stomach, Liver and Intestinal Ailments. Ask your druggist about Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy. Write to Geo. H. Mayr, Mfg. Chemist, 104 Walling St., Chicago, Ill., for free booklet on Stomach Ailments and many grateful letters from people who have been restored.

At other times there were dull nagging pains in the small of my back. One of my acquaintances had used Doan's Kidney Pills, so I took them. They soon stopped the pain. I still take Doan's Kidney Pills once in awhile and they tone up my system. They have done so much for me that I want to let other kidney sufferers know about them."
